MY TOP 4 ONLINE INCOME SOURCES

Part of my hard work for 2 years on Ecommerce and Online Marketing helped me collect these sources for you which I either do them myself or I know people close to me who are really successful on them and they can give testimonial that they really work if you put in the dedication and work to get results. Being Ecommerce, Marketing and Advertising, and Trading, my 3 strongest sources, here you are my top 4:

ECOMMERCE

All the ways to begin making money online are “FREE”, but you must understand, that in order to make it happen in an advanced way, you need a good investment of work, and to optimize it and enjoy more the things you love, you should learn how to invest your money on ads and other options which will improve and increase your sales.

Facebook: one of the best way to start with.

My advice here is to focus on just one niche (market), and then on a subniche, 2 or 3 item categories are more than enough to dominate sales on that area.

Researching the market is very easy, I help myself with Instagram, platforms such as ebay and amazon and google, to check sales and how many items are expected to sell per day, how many followers and pages of the same niche there are (there must be some).

After creating a Fanpage or Sales Group about your niche, it's there where you must invest either good time on viralizing your content (sharing on all sites, without being pitchy and providing value to the market with files, links, videos, and of yourse, promoting your sales) or help yourself with facebook ads, which you can make starting from 2-3usd per day and until you want the ads to keep running, facebook will always tell you how many people will get reached on your ad.

Instagram works pretty similar, and in fact, the same ads you place on facebook, can be placed or linked to instagram and vice-versa.

Ebay and Amazon: I started my journey on them and they keep being my best source of income. I do it from home, with no issues and I don't have to travel to the US (I'm from Soutamerica), through Dropshipping and I don't need any physical inventory and you are the intermediary between the Vendor and the Customer.

Also, you can easily go to the closest garage sale (can look for them on craigslist as well), to the flea market, a dollar tree store or wholesale store, even walmart or amazon deals itself, and you can then resell these items on either ebay or amazon for a nice profit and make 200-500 a week, just do a little research on the items on the ebay or amazon sites to check if the items have already sold, I have sold myself a small basketball hoop I got from Dollartree for 1 dollar and sold a bunch of them for about 10 on ebay, believe me, it works.

Amazon also has a great option, called FBA (Fullfilled By Amazon), in which you send physical products (that you can get from China for 1 dollar or less) to them, and sell them by 10 times more its buying price on their platform. I actually love this way to make money because of the higher profits.

But of course, the bigger the profit, the better the investment.

YOUTUBE, ADSENSE

This is not a secret for anybody, but you must understand that just like the others, it requires your time investment to make good videos or look for common creations or crossed promotions with other channels, and create your audience. Keep in mind that you must create valuable content and keep it updated either your channel or blog.

Uploading videos to your channel is FREE, building your community will take time, it's not a speedy business, and you must be careful with the copyright content with artists music or even other channels.

With AdSense is related to the content, the advertising packages you buy (you do have to invest if you want results) and you must viralize your content.

AFFILIATE MARKETING

This is another good option, since you don't have to create your content directly (or you can create your own software, books, or pages) and as its name goes “Affiliate” means that you get subscribed to someone's product and then you viralize it through all the methods you know (you get a link of course and sales page and everything) and you get a commission depending on every seller's plan. It's a great option, and you should keep in mind you have to research the products that are more trendy, and sometimes it is important to get the product for yourself, so your opinion about it will have more validation, and some other times you just need to check the sales page and videos to know about it and start promoting it.

The most known pages to check and promote products are:
Clickbank, JVzoo, Maxbounty, Warriorforum, Warriorplus

Thousands of products and infoproducts are launched every month, so you have plenty of opportunities.

TRADING (STOCKEXCHANGE)

IMHO it's one of the best choices, but it is HIGH risk, and it requires training and good budget to start with. There are people who with 250 dollars can make that money in good profits, it might not be your case, and it depends also on the type of investor you are and not letting the emotions control you. The market always surprises us, so you must develop your own strategy and many will make emphasis on the same thing, "it's not only about WINNING in the market, it's about how you are going to manage the Risk-Benefits, and how you handle your losses (your percentage), because you NEVER win 100% of the times you trade, there are no magical strategies with give you 100% absolute profits.

There are a lot of assets on TRADING, some people trade FOREX, BINARY OPTIONS, COMMODITIES, FUTURES and Pennystocks. My recommendation on trading is, if you really love it, educate yourself well and you can make it, and please, HUGE RECOMMENDATION: DO NOT RISK MONEY YOU CANNOT RISK, you must understand it's a risky market, you you have to keep in mind you will need to have how to cover your losses in case you have them, and you are not going to make it if you risk your salary in case you are an employee. I will dare to say, even some can differ with me, that you will need around 3000 dollars as very minimum budget to start with (advised from good traders and programmers on trading)

CONCLUDING...

All of the sources mentioned on this file have been tested by myself, Warren Buffet says not to put all of your eggs in the same basket, and it really must be like that, but make sure first to dominate 1 or 2 sources of income, and then you can start adding all the new baskets, since in all of them, you need to learn, study, make mistakes, and get used to them.

Remember that being an entrepreneur sometimes requires more hours than a traditional 9-5 job, if you are doing it at the same time you are an employee, you have to put in the work and time as well. If you want to start for free, you can make it, although you will always find out the paid version will help you advance more and faster and in case you don't have the necessary funds, you must compensate it with much more work from you (such as making viral content, sharing and research), so any BUSINESS will need your INVESTMENT (time, work, money, or all of them), and by the time you are advancing on this path, you will learn to invest better and to reinvest your profits for better and faster results.

Finally I conclude with the most important things you need to be successful in any of these roads:

- ✓ Mindset (not only reading books and motivational quotes, you must make things happen and improve)
- ✓ Financial Education (very important to manage your finances)
- ✓ Constant training (you should keep yourself improving so you become an expert)

- ✓ Self Motivation (an entrepreneur should keep himself/herself motivated constantly)

Do not hesitate to write me if you need any advice.
